British military intelligence reports...

Military Intelligence Files: Land, Sea and Air, 1938-1974 is the product of years of close cooperation with The National Archives (UK).

The majority of the documents are weekly, monthly, and quarterly intelligence summaries produced by the Army, Royal Navy, and Royal Air Force.

Together, they shed light on the activities and attitudes of British military intelligence agencies during the Second World War and Cold War.

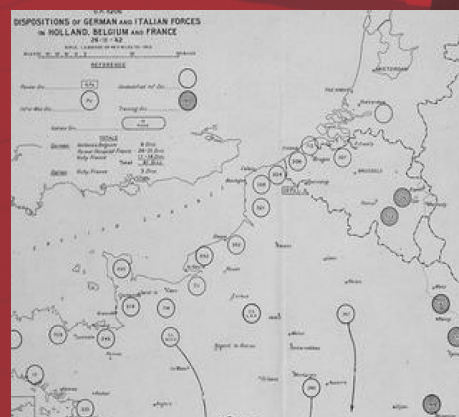

The collection is part of our wide-ranging World Wars series.

...from the Second World War & Cold War

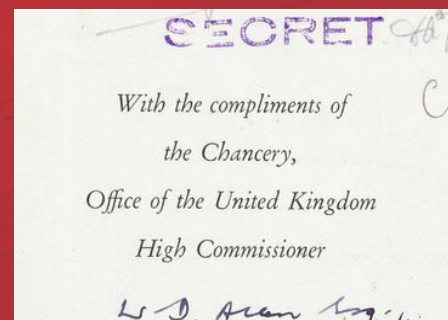

Armed forces intelligence reports during the period 1939-1945 were focused on theatre level strategy and tactics.

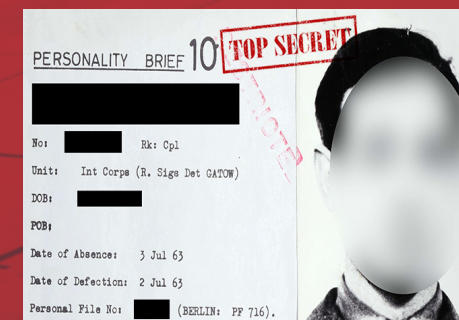

It contains a total of 73,344 images covering a diverse array of subject matter.

The images were scanned from paper at source, with Admiralty (ADM 223), Air Ministry (AIR 22 / AIR 40), Foreign Office (FO 371) and War Office (WO 208) files all featuring heavily.

The collection is also accompanied by a contextual essay written by Dr. Stephen Twigge, who described it as “a definitive and unrivalled source covering international relations and military history.”

Cold War reports paid more attention to the internal politics of the Soviet Union and Warsaw Pact nations.

Two volumes include records from the British Commanders-in-Chief Mission to the Soviet Forces in Germany (BRIXMIS).

Over 4 million records covering 1000 years of world history: from politics & warfare, to slavery & revolution.
